

1962 BUGLE
VOLUME XLIII
PUBLISHED ANNUALLY
BY THE STUDENTS OF
CRESCENT HEIGHTS HIGH SCHOOL
CALGARY, ALBERTA, CANADA

DEDICATION

The 1962 edition of the Bugle is respectfully dedicated to the Crescent Heights Home and School Association, a unifying factor between parents and teachers. It is an organization of over one hundred interested parents who each year work hand-in-hand with the teachers in many mutually helpful ways. They have set up a scholarship fund by featuring a prominent speaker at the annual Scholarship Night. Two girls and two boys in Grade X and Grade XI receive $25 and $50 respectively, while one Grade XII student is awarded a $100 bursary. The Association also undertakes the study of a certain field of education each year. Serving refreshments at Career Night, providing the girl members of the graduation class with flowers, and assisting with the lunch at the June Prom are among its other activities. It is with pleasure and in appreciation that we dedicate this year's Bugle to the Crescent Heights Home and School Association.

THE CHANGING SECONDARY SCHOOL PROGRAM

We have come to accept, I think, that every youth of the age group fifteen to eighteen years shall have an education suited to his needs and capacities, and consistent with the needs of the society of which he is a part. Broadly speaking, the needs of the student, in simple terms, are to make a worth-while living and to make a living worth-while. The one suggests that the school has a responsibility to provide some basic knowledge and skill for occupation competence; the other suggests that the student must be educated in the things which make man a good citizen, capable of distinguishing between the shoddy and the excellent in all aspects of living.

The capacities of students vary greatly. Perhaps students are even more aware of this than their parents are, since they are constantly rating themselves in relation to other students. Some students are academically inclined, they are quite good at doing the abstract thinking involved in advanced Mathematics or Science; others, while not so good in abstract thinking, are good at doing tasks of a more practical nature. Everyone is talented in some way, but the talents are different. A former President of the University of Alberta said, "I have known people in many walks of life, and I have yet to find a person whose talent in some field was not greater than my own."

The needs of society are great. Somehow or other, for better or for worse, we have in our society baby bonuses, old age pensions, free hospitalization, and the possibility of socialized medicine. The active members of society must support, in reasonable comfort, out of their productivity, the very old, the very young, and the infirm. This requires the productivity of every individual. At the same time, we know that to be uneducated is to be unemployable. There is no choice other than to develop all talents, academic or practical, to keep our society strong and productive.

The reorganization of the secondary school is simply a means of recognizing the situation outlined above. Instead of the program as we now know it, there will be programs designed to meet the needs and capacities of all students. In summary they are:

- (1) A six-year course starting at about Grade VI, expanding both in depth and in breadth the offerings of the school for that limited number of students who have been specially endowed with exceptional capacities for doing academic tasks.
- (2) A three-year matriculation program for that group of students who can proceed with profit at a university.
- (3) A four-year matriculation program with minors in Technical, Commercial or Fine Arts for that group of students who, although anxious to follow a matriculation pattern, will in all probability find their occupations in non-professional fields.
- (4) A three-year vocational program, leading chiefly to apprenticeship and to service industries.
- (5) A prevocational course starting at Grade VII and terminating at Grade X or XI, and leading directly to employment, chiefly in service industries.

Mr. R. Warren,
Superintendent of Schools

PRINCIPAL'S MESSAGE

"I have nothing to offer but blood, toil, tears and sweat."

So said the Right Honourable Winston Churchill, Prime Minister of Great Britain. The occasion, as you know, was the threat of an invasion of Great Britain by Hitler's Germany. You will note that Mr. Churchill was not concerned with guns, planes, tanks and other materials of war. Rather he was stressing toil and self-sacrifice as the means to achieve the ideal of freedom for his people.

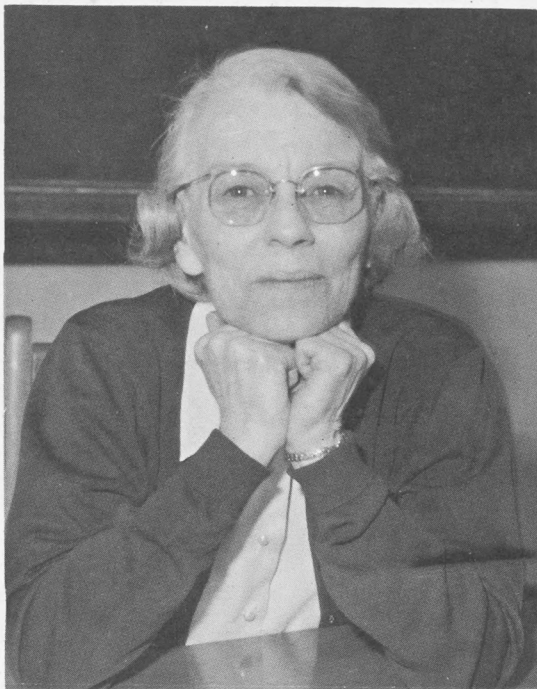

It seems apparent that the danger in which the Western world finds itself today is no less real than that in which Great Britain found itself when Mr. Churchill's words were spoken. It also seems apparent that peoples of the Western world must have ideas and ideals to which to devote their toil and for which they are willing to make sacrifices.

At the individual level, this means having lofty ideals based largely on the Christian faith, and on the worth of the individual - ideals of brotherhood, integrity, industry, self-sacrifice and the sanctity of human life. Wishful thinking, lack of ideals, trust in machines and over-concern with creature comforts will be as fatal for people today as it has been for other peoples throughout history.

It is the earnest hope of the staff of this school that our young people may have been led to see some of these truths and that they will, in the future, concern themselves with these permanent values and ensure a fruitful life.

IN TRIBUTE MISS DUNLOP AND MR. AITKEN

Miss H.M. Dunlop

One September morning in 1927, the sun's rays shining through an East Calgary High School window were bounced right back again stronger than before, reflecting from the golden head of a slim young miss, just freshly arrived to teach English. A graduate of the University of Saskatchewan, Miss Dunlop taught first in her native province and briefly in B.C., but she was far too bright to stay there, and to Alberta she came, and fortunately for us has remained until this day. When in 1934, a year before East Calgary became a junior high, Miss Dunlop came to Crescent Heights. I'll wager it wasn't long before heads were bent over composition. Well we know how dedicated that instruction became, and of what excellence it was. Hundreds of students who dared not raise their heads then, now loudly declare the thorough training they received. Graduates from every university and members of all professions come calling on Miss Dunlop, remembering her in gratitude for the insight into "The Realms of Gold" she gave them, knowing now that they had one of the foremost teachers of English in the province.

It was not all dedication to study either. Brilliant wit, deep understanding and friendliness made her room a happy place to be. Co-operation in Red Cross and other drives found her room at the top -- proof of co-operation in school life.

We regret that you are determined to say good-bye to Crescent Heights High School. Who can take your place? In going, you take with you Best Wishes for enjoyment of health and travel, art and the joys of Literature, which you have so well expounded.

MR. ALEX AITKEN

In Crescent Heights within our walls
There works a man who retires next fall.

His brogue is Scotch; his eye is keen;
He's small but mighty, quick and lean.

In so many deeds he has taken part
That it's really hard to know where to start.

He's marched to stirring Scottish lilts
Away to war in Highland kilts.

Beyond this school his fame has spread.
He's an outstanding man in St. John's First Aid.

Our Queen herself is pleased to know him;
He owns a medal that she gave him.

He's skilled in gaskets, valves and limbs.
He can put on a splint, put an arm in a sling.

Downstairs and upstairs, in class or gym,
The whole school for years has depended on him.

If one needed help, one just knocked on his door.
He's always been willing to help, and more.

He's been strong and sturdy, and a friend in need.
To serve the school well has been his creed.

And to add just one more to a varied career,
He has wife and four children and grandchildren dear.

He has worked at Crescent for many a year
And all that time he has run in high gear.

Now this year he retires and that makes us sad,
But perhaps, also it should make us feel glad.

For dear Mr. Aitken, you merit the leisure
That retirement brings and combines rest with pleasure.

Good luck and good fun to you and your wife,
Happy landing in Scotland and health and long life.

You know we shall think of you
For you are our friend;
Do come back and see us;
We'll miss you no end.

Do take our best wishes, our regard and respect
And we hope these wild verses won't make you upset!

The theme of the forty-third edition of the Bugle is the different routes available in a composite high school, such as Crescent. Throughout the book we have tried to develop this theme. From the cover, by Ken Klippert, which shows the idea of the theme in unique simplicity, to the title pages, some form of the idea may be found.

Naturally, Crescent has had to expand in order to become the efficient composite high school that it is today. With the addition of new wings to accomodate the different routes now available, it can certainly be said that Crescent has lived up to its motto, "Crescit Eundo," "It grows as it goes."

To keep Crescent growing required good students, dedicated teachers, proficient athletes, and competent all-round school citizens. Crescent's future depends upon the students and their attitude towards education and their school. This attitude can mean the difference between success and failure, both in school and in life.

THANK YOU

First of all, I would like to thank everyone who had anything to do with the success of the 1962 edition of the Bugle.

This includes, of course, the appreciation of the volumes of work done by Miss Sibbald, Mr. Warwick, and Mr. Baldwin. Their experience in Yearbooks proved to be invaluable in this issue.

It also includes every member of the Bugle Staff whose hard work provided the backbone of the book. A special thank you to Sharon Zeh and Darlene Zang, who helped out with the typing. Thanks, gals!

What would the Bugle have done without the help of Mrs. Moore and her Art classes?

I would also like to thank Mr. Cooper and Mr. Warren for their contributions and support for the Bugle.

I would like to express my appreciation to Inter-Collegiate Press and especially to Mr. Cringan whose original ideas and techniques were very useful in the production of this book.

I now wish to take this opportunity of thanking each student and teacher who supported the 43rd edition of the Bugle.

One organization represented in the Booster Club is the Cheerleaders. This group consists of two squads -- the Junior and the Senior Cheerleaders. These girls attend Football and Basketball games, the Track Meet and Pep-Rallies to lead the students, and cheer for Crescent's players.

"To promote girls' athletics in school" is the aim of the Crescent Heights Girls' Association. Every girl in Crescent is a member of the G. A. and anyone may attend its meetings Thursday at one o'clock in Room 137. Each room elects a representative to attend the meetings and report back the progress on its various projects such as its Annual Tea and Fashion Show and its hampers for Welfare Families. All money from their projects is used to buy athletic equipment and athletic awards which are presented at the athletic banquet.

Do, re, mi -- this is an introduction to the music department under the leadership of Mr. L. Erickson. The largest club in this department is the Mixed Chorus, having a membership of approximately eighty members. Under the leadership of Mr. Erickson and his bullwhip they have practices every Wednesday noon at 1 o'clock in the Music Room. They have sung their way through numerous festivals, the Operetta, and this year they were invited to go to Vancouver to sing for the Music Conference this past Easter.

Another do, re, mi, group in Crescent is the Girls' Glee Club, consisting of some thirty-six girls, all interested in music. These girls meet Thursdays at 1 o'clock in the Music Room. Their hard work and interest have helped them to win first place in Calgary and Alberta Festivals and to be asked to sing for the Women's Musical Club Concert in the Jubilee Auditorium. The Glee Club provides the Music for the Grade Twelve Graduation.

The third group is the Orchestra. This group has performed many times for Crescent functions and all their practices are in school time.

FRENCH CLUBS

SENIOR FRENCH CLUB

Parlez-vous français? The Senior French Club does. Sponsored by Miss Smith, the Senior French Club meets every Tuesday noon at 1:00 in Room 214. One aim of the club is to help its members, all Grade XII's, improve their French. Another purpose is to contribute to the French Scholarship Fund by a candy sale held February 14. In both these, the club is doing a wonderful job.

FRANÇAIS 21 CLUB

Another French Club in Crescent is the Français 21 Club. Its members, all French 21 students, meet every Friday at one o'clock in Room 213. This club was organized to help students increase their ability to understand and speak French. They also help the Senior French Club with its candy sale.

ROW ONE: Miss H. Smith, Glenda Ross, Lorraine Setter, John McDougall, Vice-President; Margaret McInall, Secretary; Don Smith, President; Joanne Spear, Margaret Rose, Miss M. Ramsay. ROW TWO: Paddy Nicolson, Stan Lapidge, Rita Scott, Deanne Smith, Lois Haniuk, Rick Jobb, Tom Rosenal, Joyce Norem.

ROW THREE: Joan Baptie, Heather Dalgetty, Trudy Milbrandt, Helga Kerber.

The Inter-School Christian Fellowship is organized to draw Christian students of Crescent together. It has widely varied programs, every Monday at 1 o'clock in Room 135, ranging from movies and speakers to talent shows and Bible studies in which all of its 25 members participate. This club also sponsors many social activities for all people who are interested and who want to understand more about Christianity.

RED CROSS CLUB

"We believe: in service for others, for our country, our community and our school; in health of mind and body, to fit us for greater service; and in better human relation throughout the world." This worthy purpose is the criterion of all the members of Crescent Heights' Red Cross Club. With the help of Miss Campbell, the Sponsor, they meet every Friday at 1:00 in Room 305 and have organized the Christmas Penny Drive, the Teachers' Tea and have also given help to refugees with the Health Kits they have assembled. They further hope to fulfill their purpose by visiting pensioners and blind people in Calgary.

CHESS CLUB

One of Crescent's clubs is the Chess Club. It has a membership of fifteen students, all with some knowledge and interest in the skills of playing chess. This club provides its own Chess sets and meets every Tuesday and Thursday noon in Room 304 under Mr. Miller's instruction. The Chess Club hopes that its membership will increase in the next year to enable them to enter more players in the city-wide high school tournaments.

MAKE-UP CLUB

One of Crescent's most unusual clubs is the Make-Up Club. It has a membership of twenty-five students, all artistic and with an interest in make-up. This club does any make-up needed for Crescent's different functions. And, it was especially active before the Operetta as this club was, this year, largely responsible for turning students of Crescent into fairies and peers, for "Iolanthe."

Every once in a while, a student arrives at this school who is not particularly interested in football games, basketball games, pep rallies, and various other activities carried on at Crescent. As soon as it becomes known that this person is so abnormally unpatriotic, we may hazard a guess that some zealot will assail him with the grave charge of having no school spirit (As if school spirit entailed going to football games and pep rallies and cheering oneself hoarse thereat, and nothing else).

True enough; if school spirit involves being a fanatic about certain sports, it has none whatever. More good reason why school exists. As much as a student, as much as him a football or not like football, it does no one harm if than at Mewata State it must therefore be considered rather autocratic for one student

The other part of the Clipper staff is the Printing 20 class which has as its major project for the year the printing of the Clipper. Members of the class work in teams assigned to the makeup of pages and the other procedures that go into the printing of each issue of the Clipper.

The latter will be the majority.

A club, active in the smooth operation of Crescent Heights High School, is the Boys' Hi-Y. This club has twenty-four members and has done a wonderful job of checking hats and coats for most of the school functions, selling school jackets and sweaters and promoting the Safe Driving Campaign. Several boys further showed their interest in new ideas by attending the Banff Conference in April.

ROW TWO: Carol Camden, Donna Morasch, Secretary; Lorraine McKee.

Have you lost anything lately? Why don't you ask at the "Lost and Found?" I am sure one of the members of the Y-Teen Club can help you find your paraphernalia. This club, which is sponsored by Miss Jagoe and which meets every Monday at 1 P.M. in Room 302, is a service organization associated with the Young Women's Christian Association. In addition to running the "Lost and Found," these girls sell the school Christmas cards, have an annual candy sale and collect Christmas toys for the needy.

OUR LIBRARY STAFF

Carol Dann, Georgina Dann, Mrs. O'Brien, Librarian; Betty-Anne Robertson, Stan Gordon, Linda Robertson, Mrs. Marion, Secretary.

Not really a club, but doing a big job in Crescent Heights is the Library Staff. Members of this group work from 8:00 to 8:40 every morning, from 1:00 to 1:40 every noon and after school to assist the Librarian in the operation of an efficient service. The assistants have many duties in this operation. They card and shelve books; check outgoing and overdue books; sort circulation cards and record the number of books circulated daily; repair books for binding; keep magazine racks in order; and generally keep house in the Library.

Congratulations go from THE BUGLE to Crescent's newest club -- The Public Speaking Club. It was established for the purpose of helping students to gain confidence when speaking before an audience and it had several successes in debates this past year. Although there were only five members, who met every Tuesday noon in Room 133F, it is hoped that there will be a greater interest next year.

Would you like to Cha Cha, Charleston, Polka? The Dance Club meets every Monday at 4 o'clock in the Cafeteria to teach these and many other dances to its members. The Club has a membership of 70 students, all interested in dancing and its main project of the year is the May Queen Dance. In the future the Club hopes to get outside instruction, from a Dance Studio, to help with some of the more difficult dances.

What skims along over the frozen ground, and often ends up at school with a cast on its leg? It's the Crescent Heights' Ski Club. The members of this club, about twenty, have enjoyed an active year with trips for the purpose of practising the techniques their ski instructors and experts have taught them at their meetings, which are held every second Monday at 12:50 in Room 114. Their sponsor, Mr. Wilkins, plays an active part in helping new members to become interested in skiing and in organizing expeditions for the group.

The swish of brooms and the rumble of the rocks rolling down ice accompany the Boys' Curling Club of Crescent and their Sponsor, Mr. Barnes, every Monday at 4:00, when they meet at the North Hill Curling Club. Did you know -- that Curling is the only game in the world where the players shake hands before and after the game? The Crescent boys are no exception to this rule of good, clean competition.

Not to be outdone by the boys, approximately 65 girls of Crescent Heights have joined the North Hill Girls' Curling Club. These girls meet Tuesday and Wednesday afternoons at 4:30 at the North Hill Curling Club. This year two teams entered the City and Southern Alberta bonspiels and one team entered the Southern Alberta Finals.

Perhaps you have heard rumors concerning Crescent Heights' darkroom. The truth is that the darkroom, Room 129b, is the gathering place of all photographically-minded students each Friday at 1 o'clock. Not just fun comes from the depths of this room for, under the watchful eye of Mr. G. Caron, the club is doing a wonderful job to help the BUGLE staff with its pictures. This year, the club's main objective is to buy a new enlarger, and we wish them luck in their project.

HOW TO GO FISHING

There is a breed of people who seem to belong to a strange and mystic order. The society is definitely more active in the warmer seasons of the year, but a few of the hardier members remain enthusiastic and loyal to the cause even in winter when the interest of many is waning or is in a period of hibernation. These spirited sportsmen are the pleasure fishermen.

In the past, the "good old days," all that was necessary in order to go fishing was a nice day, a generous measure of laziness, a stick, a string, and a small supply of worms. But things are different now.

The weather is of no consequence, and laziness is definitely not a qualification. High finance seems to take its place. Now it is not a stick, but an eight-or nine-foot rod weighing from four to five and a half ounces. The line, no longer a mere string, is now made of the finest quality silk or nylon. It must be of the correct weight to bring out the action of the rod. The proverbial worm would wiggle in his grave if he knew of the still requirements of his successors. Artificial flies and bugs made from feathers, bucktails and discreetly hidden hooks, lure the victim with their comeliness. Plugs, spoons, and spinners are scientifically designed, artistically decorated, and fully guaranteed for the fashion-conscious fish. There are also a wide variety of "pickled things" available, specially developed for the fish with fine, and expensive, taste.

The illusion of the fisherman reclining on the bank of a slow-moving lazy river, the picture of relaxation, is almost antediluvian. "The fisherman should STAND, so that the body is slightly turned to the casting side. The rod handle is grasped so that it passes from the base of the index finger to the outside heel of the hand. The knuckle of the first finger is kept close to the top of the handle, allowing the fingers and thumb to close naturally (?) around the grip. The palm of the hand should be slightly arched, so that it does not touch the handle of the rod. This grip is very relaxed....." See how easy it is?

The fisherman today has passed by the novice like myself. The skill necessary to become even an amateur in the sport of fishing is completely beyond reach, unattainable, unless you have a large economy-sized supply of dogged determination, limitless patience, and boundless energy. Also mosquito repellent. The days of going fishing for a rest are gone forever, and the pleasure in this complexity completely escapes me.

Gayle McCallum

IT TAKES ALL KINDS

Of all part-time jobs held by high-school students, I think the most interesting is that of cashier at a large supermarket.

What makes it interesting? The customers, of course. Having slaved as cashier at one store for about a year, I have accumulated quite a few regular customers.

One of my most regular customers is the old man who comes in every Friday night. He is of immense proportions, and always looks as though he hasn't shaved in a month of Sundays. He has two tiny red eyes peeping out from his big, white face. They are half-covered by the brim of his soiled, green hat. When it comes his turn to have his groceries rung through, he peers at me from beneath his hat and growls in a loud, gruff voice, "Hello, girl. How are you?" Before I have a chance to answer, he turns to the wrapper and growls, "Hello, boy. How are you?" When I tell him the amount of his order, he throws a bill at me, and stalks away. We always have to run after him with his change. This annoys him greatly.

Then there is the Hollywood-type girl who comes through my checkstand every weekend. Her long platinum hair never fails to look as if she had just stepped out of the hairdresser's. Her clothes look as if she has had them flown in from Paris. She has long eyelashes shading deep blue eyes which sparkle with fun -- the naughty kind. To top it all off, she has a genuine French accent which seems to glamorize her all the more. For some reason -- I don't know why -- I never seem to be in need of a wrapper when she comes through; in fact, there are always two or three of them.

One of the customers I'll never forget is the one whom I've secretly dubbed "Mr. Clean." I think he is the cleanest person I have ever seen. When he hands me the money, I notice that his hands are white and wrinkled from excessive washing. Everything he buys, he has wrapped in a separate bag "for sanitary purposes." For instance, in one bag he will have a tin of shoe polish, in another, two cans of soup, in still another, a box of breakfast cereal, and so on through his order. I really don't see how this affects the cleanliness of his groceries, but at least he walks out of the store satisfied, and that is what counts. If all our customers were like him, the store's bag supply would be exhausted in one evening.

Something else which never fails to amuse me is the embarrassed grins people show when they confide to me that they want their groceries in big bags, because they "need them for garbage bags. They just fit the garbage can."

My favorite customers are those who have these funny little idiosyncrasies or who have some special feature about them. Although a cashier comes into contact with hundreds of dollars a day, not much of it sticks to her fingers; she gets paid in the enjoyment she gets out of her customers.

ON SILENCE

Who said "Silence is golden?" If silence is golden, then gold should be banished to the company of the baser metals. Silence is closer to lead than gold.

There are two kinds of silence: indoor and outdoor. Of the two, indoor silence is much harder to live with. This silence is not necessarily complete; there may be noises outside, but inside there is a complete vacuum of human noises surrounded by four walls. There are no sounds of footsteps, or chatter, or swish of clothes, scratching pen, or clacking typewriter. There is no telephone bell ringing. (This may be one of the few points in favor of indoor silence.) There are no crashes as the adolescent of the house trips over the furniture. The silence amplifies the rattling of the window into the battering of a furious army of unknown things. The house, which ordinarily does not creak, suddenly sounds as if its groaning timbers are about to collapse. Your own breathing sounds like a pair of gigantic bellows. All this increases in direct proportion to the amount of wind and darkness outside.

Outdoor silence is rare; nature abhors it because it is a vacuum. Wind sings, water chatters and leaves flutter to fill the air with some sort of sound. But sometimes in the winter when the wind has blown itself out, the water is frozen and the leaves have fallen, and you are far enough away from the highway, there is silence. It is so deep and profound that it is almost palpable. Its weight is crushing. To move, you have to fight your way through it, and any sound you make is swallowed up almost before you hear it. Then a crow screams from a tree, or a flock of partridges flies whirring up from under your feet, and the silence is shattered. So are your nerves.

Nothing is quite as hard on the nerves as silence, and, once you do get used to it, nothing is more shocking than to have it broken. That is why, when you enter into the carefully guarded tomb-like atmosphere of a library, it is a good idea to throw your books down on the desk with a satisfying whack! and jar the inmates out of their respective comas. Otherwise you will never get enough courage to make the necessary noise to get out.

Now you don't want to condemn silence completely. There are times when it IS golden or at least of a bronzish hue. Times like the one when you dropped a hammer on your toe and after the initial scream still felt like saying something. Or when, in the dying moments of a meeting, some donkey comes up with an argument you know you could talk him out of -- in another half hour or so. Silence is beautiful hovering in the tinted half-light of an old church or cathedral. And when you really haven't anything to say, silence is a mark of true maturity. But usually silence retains its leaden qualities.

These are the reasons that silence is the most un-golden entity on the earth. Nature abhors silence, and fills it up with a million minute sounds. Children ignore it and keep up a constant noise so as to keep from hearing it. And besides that, silence is the world's loneliest sound.

JOANNE HOAR

BONS VOYAGES

Why is it that people the world over spend fifty weeks of the year in anticipation of the other two, and then fail to make the most of those holiday weeks? It's true that everyone finds his own method of occupying his time, but few get the full benefit of their precious holidays, even those fortunates who have more than a fortnight of freedom. Of course the fashions of spending holidays are as various as human beings themselves, but there are a few that make me question the sanity of human beings in general.

First, there's the businessman who wants to pack up and leave his problems behind while he relaxes on the nearest beach. He's defeated before he starts, because chances are he'll be lucky to squeeze his family onto the beach. And does he leave his problems behind? Most certainly not. The ones he doesn't bring with him, he finds upon his arrival. The neighbour with the noisy twins is in the next cabin, a business associate wants to talk business, the car breaks down, Junior catches the measles, and it rains twelve days in a row. Although they return home with glowing accounts of their trip deep in their minds, I'm sure they feel that there must be a better way to holiday.

Whether better or not, I couldn't say, but there is another way. I spent a week in Scotland this summer with a family to whom perpetual motion is synonymous with relaxation. We climbed Ben Nevis in a heavy fog, walked up to Edinburgh Castle, and every other castle from Glasgow to Inverness. Each two-and-six tour was an education in itself, but one which I won't have until I wade through my guide books and pictures. The Scottish energy, undampened by the constant precipitation, is contagious.

Before going to Scotland, however, I had the pleasure of seeing and meeting the most unusual tourists I have ever run across. They were the throngs of English-speaking travellers visiting European countries. They vary also, in the ways they enjoy their holiday. Some try to follow the adage, "When in Rome, do as the Romans do," in every country. I saw an American pick up a bag in the Florence Straw Market, examine it carefully and ask, "Quanto Costa, Senor?" only to be told, in impeccable English, "Three American dollars." Then there is the tourist, usually a woman, (much as I hate to admit it) who always seems to miss the point of the famous sights she sees. I travelled with a lady who noticed how dirty the Arc de Triomphe was, how noisy Vienna was, and how aromatic Venice was. Her companion, an elderly lady who insisted on paying for Austrian coffee with Dutch guilders, spent much of her time reading, and, on our third day in Italy, looked up from her book to say how lovely the Swiss countryside looked. Another member of our party took a marathon walk in every city. Along with the sorest feet, he seemed to have the most personal knowledge of each place we visited.

In spite of all these seemingly ridiculous actions on the part of tourists and travellers, it is not fair to condemn them, since we all are among their numbers. But I, for one, plan to make the most, in my own way, of every holiday that comes my way.

ARROGANCE

His narrow eyes in high disdain
Survey the cringing courtiers
And, silently, he laughs at them.
The courtiers approach, and timidly,
On their knees, try to evoke
Some look of favour
From the slitted eyes
Which seem to control the fate
Of every man in that great room.
His majesty tries not to look
At these poor mortals, milling round,
But looks beyond the courtiers
To his great kingdom outside
And longs to be out there hunting
With his closest friends, away
From all these fawning flatterers,
Doing as he pleases.
But, alas, he needs must stay
Amid these silks,
Upon this detestable pedestal
And pretend to listen
To the supplications
Of all these lesser folk
And signal his disapproval
(Or, more rarely, his assent)
To all their petty schemings and plans.

At long-awaited last,
The hour of his deliverance
Is at hand.
Master comes and lifts
His Most Purrfect Imperial Majesty
By the scruff of his neck And carries him off to his home
From the cat show.

TRIOLETS

In the sun-kissed month of April
The sparrows twitter, the robins sing,
A lark, in the early morning, trills
In the sun-kissed month of April.
A butterfly flutters on the window sill
And in the woods is a fairy ring.
In the sun-kissed month of April
The sparrows twitter, the robins sing.

While looking up I found
The sky before the morn;
The darkness was without a sound.
While looking up I found
That wonderful things are not on the ground,
For the dawn was breaking, a new day born.
While looking up I found
The sky before the morn.

JOKES

Brown's party was a roaring success except in one way--there were no napkins. The store was sold out of paper ones and the linen napkins hadn't come back from the laundry. So Brown mounted a chair and announced: Ladies and gentlemen, there are no napkins but at frequent intervals a large, Wooly dog will pass among you.

Procrastination is a thief of time, and so are a good many other long words.

Mr. Caron: "Now class, if in going down this incline I gain four feet every second, what will be my condition at the end of twenty-five seconds?"

Derek: "You'll be a centipede."

The hand that points the way to the future these days, must have some of the fingers crossed.

The housewife was pleased with the promptness of the delivery boy and she asked his name.

"William Shakespeare," answered the boy.

"Well, that's quite a famous name," she said.

"It should be," the boy said haughtily. "I've been delivering in this neighbourhood for three years now."

A pessimist complains about the loud noise when opportunity knocks.

Mr. Baldwin was busily engaged digging in the mud beside his car when a stranger hailed him.

"Stuck in the mud?" he asked.

"Oh, no!" exclaimed Mr. Baldwin cheerily, "my engine died and I'm digging a grave for it."

Out of the mouths of babes come words Papa didn't know they were hearing.

There was an old man from Lenore,
Whose mouth was as wide as a door.
While attempting to grin,
He slipped and fell in,
And lay inside-out on the floor.

Miss Wright: "What's a Grecian urn, Wes?"

Wes Tritter: "I don't know; I guess it depends on what he does."

"I want you to grow up straight--every inch a man," said the king to his son, "so that you will make a good ruler."

In a free nation, it is said, "Believe it or not"; in the other kind, "Believe it or else."

The manager and one of his salesman stood before a map on which colored pins indicated the representative in each area. "I'm not going to fire you, Cartwright," the manager said, "but just to emphasize the insecurity of your position I'm loosening your pin a little."

Miss Smith: "You missed my class yesterday, didn't you?"

Terry Clark: "No, Ma'm, not a bit."

Perry Mason: "Now tell the jury the truth, please! Why did you shoot your husband with a bow and arrow?"

Defendant: "I didn't want to wake the children."

Little girl: "At Sunday School, teacher said that people come from dust and when they die they go back to dust. Is that true, Mommy?"

Mother: "Everything you learn at Sunday School is true, dear."

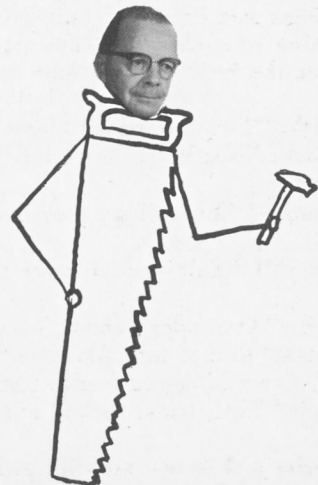

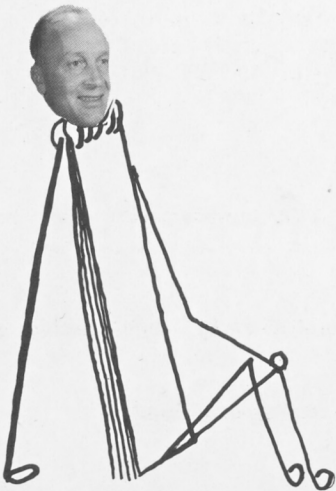

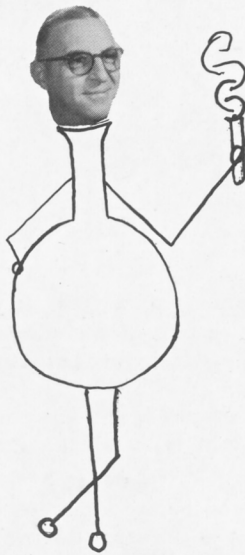

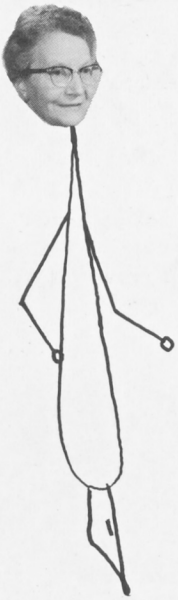

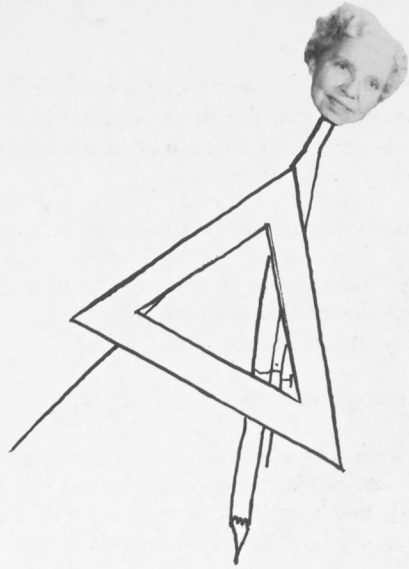

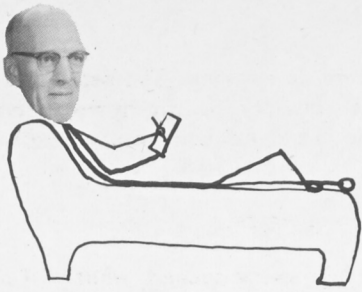

Little girl: "Well, I just looked under my bed and someone is either coming or going."

Two sorority girls are two sorority girls.

SAFETY DRIVE

This year the Hi-Y-sponsored Safe Driving Assembly was held on April 17th in the New Gym. Doug Ramsay and Mr. Coop acted as chairmen. Sergeant Hansen gave some humorous recollections of his school days at Crescent and then seriously explained the purpose of the following films. These were "Tested Advantages of Safety Belts" and "Death on the Highway", both of which plainly illustrated the need for safe, sane, alert and especially defensive driving. At noon, the Gym was open to students to browse around the displays which were set up by the Jaycees, Mounted Police, and others. On April 18th, a Safe Driving Rodeo for Crescent drivers was held. Let us hope that our driving habits improve as a result of the valuable efforts of our conscientious Hi-Y Club and the co-operative City Police Department.

CRESCENT WINS AGAIN

April 17th, four Crescent Heights' students of Math twenty successfully defeated, for the second year, the four members on Viscount Bennett's team. Crescent's team, consisting of Marlene Warren, Helen Matthiesen, Stanley Lapidge and Gerald Gerlitz, defeated their opponents by a score of 77 to 68 to retain the honour of "Math 20 Champions". Mrs. M. Melech's Math 20 class assisted in the Timing, Scoring, Ushering and Communicating. John McDougall was the Chairman. Three judges from Crescent, Viscount and Central marked the papers.

MARDI GRAS

A milestone this year at Crescent was the Mardi Gras which was put on by the G.A.

Although many people didn't come in costume, their lack of participation was made up for by the originality of those who did come in costume. Many of the girls dressed up along the same line, the "Roaring Twenties," but their costumes were so pretty, and in many cases comical that no one noticed the similarity. Among other costumes were Arabs, harem girls, and beatniks.

The choosing of the best costumes was done by Mr. and Mrs. Don MacKay and a panel of judges. The winners of this contest were Sandra Pleasance and Ronnie Doll who came as rag dolls.

At 11 P.M. the plastic bags suspended above the dancers were broken, and balloons, horns, whistles, and the like showered down on everyone. The dance ended about 11:30 and everyone agreed that it was a tremendous success. It has certainly set a precedent in Crescent this year.

CARE WEEK

Crescent held its third annual Care Week February 5-9. Again, the students gave their full support. In past years Crescent collected $653.34 and $800. This year's total was $1,007 -- $157 above the objective of $850! Miss H.M. Dunlop's room contributed the largest sum, which was $34. Every member in the room received free tickets to the Basketball Playoffs.

Care Week began Monday with an assembly. Chairman Bob Norton explained Care Week and its aims. Last year's Chairman, Bill McLean, was on hand to talk about the previous Care Drive. On the first day of the drive, jars were placed in each classroom.

Tuesday was Box Lunch Day. This was sponsored by the G.A. After lunch, a square dance was held in the New Gym. Mr. Kitch Elton was on hand as caller. Music was supplied by The Scabs.

The Auction Sale was held Wednesday with Bob Norton and Bill Sears as auctioneers. Betty Parkin was sold at the highest price -- $4.35. One boy bought a surprise box in which he found a pink negligee!

On Thursday a cheer rally was held. The MC's were Barry McCullough and Ed Wood. Here again, The Scabs provided the music.

This year a new attraction was featured Friday in the Old Gym. A carnival! There were booths and games of chance set up by various clubs in the school.

Another new attraction this year was a Care King. The contestants were: Ed Wood, Gordon Mehling, and Barry McCullough. During the Week, the contestants campaigned furiously, and especially at the Care cheer rally. Tickets on the king contestants sold for 5 cents each. After the Basketball Game Friday, Barry McCullough was crowned Care King.

Crescent CAREd!

FOOTBALL QUEEN

Sally Storey, a Grade XII student in Room 213, received an inscribed football necklace and a crown of roses when she became Crescent's Foot-Queen for 1961.

Born and raised in Calgary, Sally is a cheerleader and belongs to the Booster Club. She has played on the Junior All-Star Basketball Team as well as the Senior All-Star Volleyball Team, and was a member of the Badminton Club.

Among her other interests are swimming, water-skiing and horseback riding. Although she has a part-time job at Woodward's, Sally finds time to enjoy classical music, popular music, and all that "jazz."

In the future, Sally plans to enter the University of Alberta, Calgary, to study for the Bachelor of Arts Degree.

Good luck to our gal, Sal!

MAY QUEEN

Jo-Anne Mackay and Ruth Ironside

After a colorful week of campaigning, Crescent students elected Jo-Anne Mackay, sponsored by the Girls' Association, as their 1962 May Queen.

The radiant Queen Jo-Anne was President of G.A. and Cheer Captain this year. Besides being a member of the Ski Club, Jo-Anne, who enjoys all sports--from swimming to skiing, finds time for Woodward's Fashionette, Mutual Improvement Association, and all Church activities.

Jo-Anne, who will be attending Brigham Young University and later the University of Hawaii, hopes to be able to understand and help others. This goal will undoubtedly carry her far in her chosen profession as a Social Worker, with which she hopes to combine some modelling and T.V. work.

Congratulations from the Bugle, Jo-Anne. The best of luck in all your future plans.

The Bugle would also like to extend best wishes to the other candidates--Pat Ashton, Marlis Kaul, Virginia Lindberg, Helen Stevenson, and Janice Webber.

IOLANTHE

Gilbert and Sullivan's operetta IOLANTHE was presented on March 7, 8, and 9, in the Old Gym. Under the skilled direction of Mr. Lloyd Erickson, Music; Mr. David Short, Drama; and Mme. Olga Valda, Choreography; the lead singers, fairies, peers, orchestra and many assistants (a combined total of one-fifth of the school's enrollment) contributed to a first-rate performance.

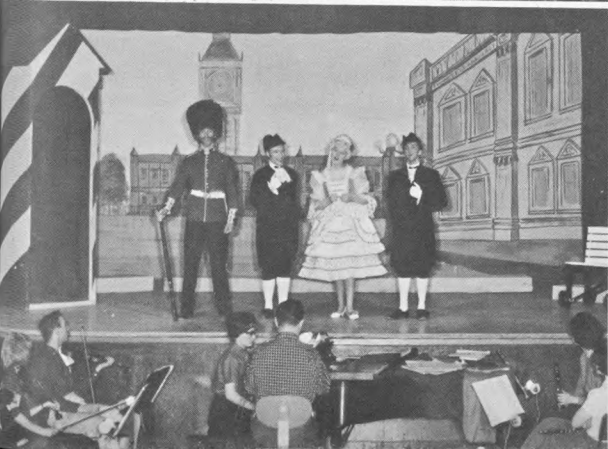

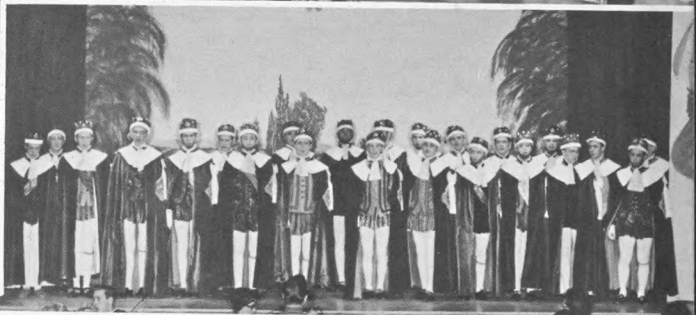

The lead characters were as follows:

| | | |
|----------------------|---|-----------------|
| Phyllis | — | Donna Faye Carr |
| Iolanthe | — | Eva Rouse |
| Queen of the Fairies | — | Marilyn Gittel |
| Strephon | — | Barry Wood |
| Lord Chancellor | — | David Warrack |
| Lord Mountararat | — | Rick Trombinski |
| Lord Tolloller | — | Lyle Spry |

The specialized groups which added considerably to the production's success included the Make-Up Club, the stage crew, the box office girls and ushers and staff members, including Miss Elizabeth Duff, the Business Manager.

Despite the overall finesse of the performance, there were naturally certain highlights. Probably the most outstanding was the triumphant finale in which the entire cast sang together. Others were the impressive entrance of the peers attired in dashing red and blue velvet cloaks and white silk stockings and enthusiastically singing "Loudly Let the Trumpet Bray," the appearance of the dainty fairies and their ethereal singing, the electric contrast of the entrance of the Fairy Queen and her perfect characterization, the exceptional acting and singing of the three lords, and the talented solos and duets of Phyllis and Strephon.

Everyone concerned with this fine production is to be thanked for the untold hours spent on its behalf, and congratulated on his contribution to its success. Crescent has truly done it again!

The horseshoe and buffalo—chosen as the trade-mark of the Calgary Brewing and Malting Co. VALEDICTORY

Ruth Ironside

Madam Chairman, Honored Guests, Teachers, Parents, and Fellow Graduates:

"And one man in his time plays many parts;
His acts being seven ages. At first the infant,
Mewling and peeking in the nurse's arms.
And then the whining school-boy, with his satchel
And shining morning face, creeping like snail
Unwillingly to school."

Yes, this is the finale of Act Two of our lives. Our three years of high school are drawing to a close, and thus for many the years of formal education are almost ended. Naturally, we shall be relieved to be able to say good-bye to our books, but we shall be sad to say good-bye to the many friends we have made during the past three years. Before we do say good-bye it is my privilege tonight to remind you of the various experiences we have shared at Crescent in the academic, athletic, artistic, and extracurricular fields.

In the academic field which, after all, is the main reason for our being here, most of us have maintained a high standard throughout the years, and now the end is oh - so near. We have struggled together with propositions, only later to be confronted with permutations and combinations; with Shakesperean plays, the translation of which is no less difficult than French or Latin; with dull World Affairs magazines, which by Grade XI had some color added to them; with chemistry, at which we cannot turn up our noses: the odors soon reach us; and we have definitely struggled with our monstrous grasshoppers and frogs in which acute cases of rigor mortis were discovered. Shortly we shall be struggling with these for the last time.

On the other hand, there has been the athletic activity at Crescent. Well, we haven't put a score of trophies in the main hall, but the spirit has always been there. The boys came close to winning city basketball honors this year, but in the past we haven't been as lucky in football or track. Meanwhile, back at the school, our houseleague sports at noon have attracted many of us.

We shall always remember the efforts of students and teachers in the music, art, home economics, and business education departments. We have enjoyed three successful Gilbert and Sullivan operettas. This year, too, the Mixed Chorus travelled to Vancouver to perform. The art classes always helped us by designing the cover for the BUGLE, and by painting backdrops and murals for the operettas and June proms. Often, from the home economic rooms, delicious aromas floated to all floors of the building, especially during the fifth period. Now this aspect of life at Crescent is almost over.

The number of extracurricular activities and organizations is outstanding. Some of us found ourselves in too many groups, and we weren't able to contribute quiet as much as we planned. When we were in Grade X, CARE WEEK was born, and it is growing each year. We really did work together during those weeks. Throughout the year we have enjoyed rallies before each game, and exciting campaigns by Football and then May Queen contestants. There will be no more of these for us now.

All that remains now is our thoughts about and appreciation for those who have helped us here at Crescent.

At our first assembly in Grade X we were greeted by Mr. Cooper who offered us the understanding and encouragement we desperately needed. He made us feel right at home from the beginning. The only difficulty with our new home was that we could never find the right room in a hurry. Finally, we were able to memorize which rooms were where, and then by Grade XI, the rooms were re-numbered for our convenience, and so we started over again. All aspects of high school life were confusing at first, but through patience, perseverance, and kindness, Mr. Cooper, the guidance counsellors, and our teachers showed us the way. As we pursue our future careers, we can do so with confidence for we are sure that the foundation which has been laid at Crescent will stand us in good stead. On behalf of the graduates I wish to say a sincere "Thank you" to the teachers for their untiring efforts.

And, of course, we must not forget our parents, who shared our experiences of high school with us. They have provided the guidance we thought we didn't need, and the loving support we shall always appreciate.

Before the end of Act Two does come, we should look ahead to the part we shall play in our five remaining acts. It's a new world we shall be living in, and we must face it with a new outlook. We all realize that today the future is more uncertain than it ever has been, but that it is uncertain does not necessarily mean the future is bleak. However, we must have faith to meet the challenge of the complexity of modern living, and we must be determined and prepared to live the best possible life in order that we may contribute to the continuance of progress and of our democratic ideals.

Whatever the future may bring, we shall remember the years spent at Crescent and all that we have gained from them.

Ruth Ironside
